Accommodation comprises : Hallway, lounge, kitchen/diner, inner hallway, cloakroom, sitting room/office/playroom, landing, bathroom and two double bedrooms. Externally to the front, on-street parking with steps leading down to the property entrance. Pedestrian access to the side leading to the rear garden. To the rear a larger-than-average garden that has a level-lawned area and the remainder of the garden is a down-ward sloping lawn with access at the bottom to the playing fields and public footpath.

Ponthenri is a small rural village in Wales, located in the Gwendraeth Valley's centre, halfway between Carmarthen and Llanelli towns. There are no shops now, although the village has one pub (The Baltic Inn) and a social club. The majority of amenities are located in the neighbouring village of Pontyates. Pontheri offers peace and quiet in rural surroundings but is only a short drive from the hustle and bustle of town life.
