About The Plot

Beaumont Davey Close occupies a unique and quietly tucked-away position off Ashford Road (A251) on the southern edge of Faversham, falling within the town's built-up boundary and close to the Faversham Fire Station site, the very reason this group of four homes was originally constructed. Historically, these dwellings were provided as housing for fire service staff, a legacy that contributes to the close's distinctive character and sense of place within the local neighbourhood.

The Close offers a peaceful setting with a strong sense of community, contrasted against its proximity to essential amenities. Despite being quietly positioned, it remains conveniently close to local facilities, with excellent access on foot or by car to Faversham town centre, schools, transport links and everyday services. The development itself benefits from a well-screened, slightly elevated site with mature greenery around the perimeter, providing privacy and a relaxed outlook.

About The Area

Faversham is one of Kent's most historic and characterful market towns, known for its beautiful period architecture, vibrant community feel, and excellent transport connections. Sitting just 10 miles west of Canterbury and nestled between the Kent Downs and the Thames Estuary, it offers a perfect balance of heritage charm and modern convenience.

At its heart lies a bustling town centre filled with independent shops, artisan cafés, traditional pubs, and a weekly Charter Market dating back over 900 years. The town is steeped in history — from its medieval abbey roots and quayside warehouses to its iconic Shepherd Neame brewery, the oldest in the country.

Families are well served by a selection of high-performing primary and secondary schools, and commuters benefit from Faversham's mainline station, offering regular trains into London Victoria, St Pancras, and Cannon Street — with journeys as short as 65 minutes.

Nature lovers are just minutes away from the Oare Marshes Nature Reserve, creekside walks, and the wider Kent countryside, while the M2 and A2 provide easy road access to Canterbury, Whitstable, and beyond.

Faversham continues to grow in popularity thanks to its blend of historical charm, coastal proximity, and ongoing investment in homes and infrastructure, making it a highly desirable place to live, work, and raise a family.
