Accommodation

Dating back over two hundred years, this beautiful and unique Grade II listed Georgian townhouse has much to desire and to offer prospective buyers with a subtle blend of both modern and original characterful features throughout. The present owners successfully run the property as an Airbnb whilst previously as a successful HMO for University students. The property would also make for a perfect family home within a ideal central location.

The accommodation is spread across three floors with five double bedrooms across the upper two floors, four of which comprise en-suite shower rooms. The ground provides a separate cosy living room to the front aspect and additional white suite bathroom. To the rear, the kitchen provides the perfect space for families or for entertaining guests opening through to a convenient dining area.

Outside

To the rear, a secure gated car park is found providing parking for several building with an allocated parking space for the property to be created adjacent to the property itself. Setback from the road, stoned paved pathway leads to the property itself with fencing and planting creating a welcoming entrance to the home. Suitable space for an outside seating area has also been created to the front with the potential for another to be created to the rear.

Location

A short distance from the heart of the historic city centre, Brunswick Road offers a mix of Edwardian and Victorian housing alongside a handful of small independent cafes and bistros. Approximately a quarter of a mile from the ever popular Gloucester Quays outlet and Docklands the area continues to offer a further range of restaurants, cinema and bars whilst the city itself continues to provide various public transport, sporting events at Kingsholm Stadium and easy commuting links to both Birmingham and Bristol.
