This is a truly captivating home, brimming with character and charm, and still showcasing many of its original period features. Spread gracefully across four floors, it offers a wonderful sense of space and versatility. Three generous double bedrooms, a large family bathroom, two welcoming reception rooms, a kitchen and useful cellar rooms all come together to create a property that feels both unique and full of promise. While some modernisation would undoubtedly enhance its appeal, the house already carries a warmth and individuality that makes it truly stand out.

The location only adds to its desirability. Nestled within walking distance of Lancaster's bustling city centre and train station, the property offers excellent convenience while still enjoying the calm of a peaceful residential street. Families will be particularly drawn to its position within the sought-after grammar school catchment area, while professionals will appreciate the easy access to everything the city has to offer.
