Offers In Excess Of £50,000

The Former St Margaret's Church is situated within a rectangular Churchyard located approximately 300 meters south of the small mid-Pembrokeshire village of Wolfscastle. It is understood that the Church was originally built in 1672 by a Landowner from nearby Puncheston.

The Church building is unlisted and comprises a small solid stone structure under a slate roof. To the fore is an entrance porch with overhead external bellcote. The site is virtually in the shadow of Treffgarne Rock - a recognisable geological landmark located in Pembrokeshire.
