

Located within Reading's well-established Eldon Conservation Area, this attractive period terrace cottage combines traditional character with a considered modern approach to presentation. The property occupies a convenient position within easy reach of Reading town centre, the University of Reading, and the Royal Berkshire Hospital.

The ground floor accommodation comprises a welcoming sitting room retaining period features, leading through to a refitted kitchen/dining room where contemporary fittings sit comfortably alongside the home's original character. A basement room provides additional ancillary space suitable for storage or flexible use.

On the floors above, there is a double bedroom and a tastefully updated bathroom, finished in a modern style, and a multi-purpose loft space.

Externally, the property benefits from a courtyard garden, offering a private outdoor area in a central location. A further advantage is the absence of an onward chain.

This property offers a balanced combination of character and modern comfort and would appeal to professionals, first-time buyers, or those seeking a well-located home within a conservation area.
