With the first area of garden being paved to the rear of the home and offering ample space for garden table and chairs. Outside water tap. Wooden storage shed. The majority of area is then laid to lawn with flower and shrub borders. A gate leads to an additional area of garden currently used for garden storage and then a wooden gate providing rear access.

Garden Cabin

3.66m x 3.61m (12'0 x 11'10)

The Garden Cabin is a 132 sq. ft. timber-built structure constructed in 2002 as a dry, secure and well-insulated art studio and office space. It rests on a level concrete base incorporating a damp proof layer. Its thick insulated walls, roof and floor protect against temperature changes, wind and rain, helping it remain draught-free, economical to heat and cooler in summer. The cabin includes robust foundations, double-glazed windows, built-in shelving, extensive power provision through an RCD system, and a secondary backup electrical supply. It has no mains water, drainage or broadband except by temporary extension cable from the wi-fi, but is well suited for storage, creative work and office use where dryness, security and stable conditions are important.
