Location

Old Harlow is a historic market town in Essex, England, known for its charming character and rich heritage. Unlike the newer parts of Harlow developed after World War II, Old Harlow has retained its traditional feel, with narrow streets, period buildings, and a village-like atmosphere. The High Street is lined with independent shops, cafés, pubs, and restaurants, giving the area a welcoming and community-focused vibe. Historic landmarks such as St Mary-at-Latton Church, which dates back to the Norman period, highlight the town's long history. Surrounded by green spaces and close to the River Stort, Old Harlow blends rural beauty with convenient access to London and nearby towns, making it a desirable place to live and visit.
