Property Description

For Sale By Public Auction

Set within the historic market town of Ludlow, this substantial brick-built former agricultural building offers a rare and characterful opportunity in a well-established residential setting. The building has an appealing traditional appearance, with red brick elevations beneath a pitched roof, and retains the proportions and presence associated with its former use. Although now in need of improvement, the structure has a strong sense of permanence and provides an attractive basis from which to create its future use, subject to any permissions that may be required.

The building currently comprises an elongated brick structure, with the southern section arranged as residential accommodation. This area includes ground floor facilities together with further living space at first floor level. The adjoining former barn provides a generous internal volume, with open areas, high rooflines and traditional detailing, all contributing to the sense of character and scale. Externally, the surrounding land includes areas of hardstanding together with garden space, offering scope for private outdoor areas and practical parking. The property occupies a prominent position, sitting slightly elevated in relation to nearby homes and enjoying a setting that feels both tucked away and conveniently placed. The surrounding area includes established residential properties, mature greenery and a sense of enclosure, helping to give the building a more private and individual feel. The existing access serves nearby residential dwellings and connects the property to the wider road network, with mains services already connected to the building.
