GENERAL COMMENTS

The location of Treservern House is very special indeed, tucked away at the end of a long lane and enjoying fabulous uninterrupted water views over Stithians reservoir and surrounded by its own land that extends to approximately thirty seven acres in total. The house is very understated from outside and it is so much larger than it looks with light and spacious rooms that is very surprising and appealing. The property is perfect for equestrian use and is very well equipped for this with extensive stabling and excellent riding out from the property without having to go on any main roads which is very rare. The house has evolved over the years, thought to have originally been two farm workers cottages it has been amalgamated into one and extended substantially and has approximately 3,400 square feet of accommodation over two floors. There are five double bedrooms and bathroom on the first floor. The master bedroom is huge with en suite bathroom and all enjoy the magnificent water and countryside views. The ground floor has a large sitting room, dining room, kitchen/breakfast room with Aga, utility, back kitchen, workshop and cloakroom. There is potential to remodel the workshop, back kitchen and utility to create a self contained annexe if required with independent access. The views are very special inside and out. Extensive gardens surround the house and a dilapidated stone barn has potential for conversion. There is a detached garage/workshop with inspection pit, a stable yard including six stables and substantial hay barn/machinery store. The land included with Lot 1 extends to approximately ten acres, There is a further twenty seven acres available in two lots - Lot 2 has nine acres and Lot 3 eighteen acres. The land is divided into useful paddocks enclosed within natural hedge boundaries.
