Description of Property

Dating back to the mid-1800s, Westmead is a substantial period residence offering over 3,800 sq ft of accommodation, arranged over two principal floors with additional cellar space. The house has been carefully maintained over the years and retains a number of attractive original features, including high ceilings, sash-style windows, decorative corning, period fireplaces, deep skirting boards, herringbone parquet flooring and well-proportioned reception rooms.

The property occupies a prominent walled position on Driffold, with a distinctive arrangement whereby the principal entrance faces the gardens rather than the road. This orientation is understood to have been deliberately created by a previous owner to take full advantage of the south-facing gardens, allowing the main reception spaces and entrance approach to enjoy a particularly light and private aspect.

Internally, the accommodation is generous, practical and notably bright, with a natural flow between the principal reception rooms. The proportions, ceiling heights and retained architectural detailing provide an excellent foundation for a purchaser seeking a character home with scope to further personalise. The enclosed entrance porch provides a light-filled introduction to the house and opens into the main reception hall. From here, the scale of the accommodation is immediately apparent, with the hallway giving access to the principal ground floor rooms and featuring attractive herringbone parquet flooring. The drawing room is an elegant and well-proportioned reception room, enjoying excellent natural light and direct access onto the garden terrace. Period detailing includes decorative ceiling features, a substantial fireplace and tall windows, creating a room well suited to both formal entertaining and everyday family use.

A separate snug enjoys an attractive bay window overlooking the grounds, together with a traditional fireplace. This room provides a comfortable additional living space and works well as a more informal reception room. The morning room offers a further versatile reception room, positioned to the front of the house and benefitting from an original fireplace, period detailing and French doors. Together, the three principal reception rooms provide excellent flexibility for family living, entertaining, working from home or creating quieter areas within the house.

The kitchen/dining room has been modernised and provides a practical everyday family space, with fitted cabinetry, integrated appliances and room for dining. The adjoining dining area enjoys good natural light, making it a pleasant and functional hub of the home. Beyond the kitchen, a secondary lobby area provides access to the utility room, guest WC, store room and an additional external entrance (close to the detached double garage). This part of the house is particularly useful for family life, offering practical storage and day-to-day access away from the principal reception areas.

The cellar has been adapted to provide a characterful leisure space, currently arranged as a games/snooker room with an adjoining wine cellar. It retains a more rustic feel and offers useful additional space with potential for a variety of uses, subject to a purchaser's requirements.

To the first floor, a generous gallery landing gives access to five double bedrooms, including two ensuite bedrooms and a family bathroom. The principal bedroom is a spacious and bright room with bay window and a well-appointed ensuite bathroom. Bedroom two is also a good-sized double and benefits from its own ensuite shower room. Bedrooms three and four are both well-proportioned rooms, with the layout also incorporating bedroom five currently used as a gym. This space could equally serve as a dressing room, study, nursery or double bedroom, depending on the needs of the purchaser. The family bathroom has been updated in a simple contemporary style, with a freestanding bath and separate shower arrangement, complementing the period character of the house while providing modern convenience.

Overall, Westmead offers a rare combination of period architecture, generous accommodation and established grounds in a convenient Sutton Coldfield setting. It is a home of genuine character, with excellent natural light, retained original features and South facing gardens.

Gardens and Grounds

The gardens form an important part of the appeal of Westmead. The house is positioned to enjoy a strong relationship with the grounds, with the principal entrance and main outlook facing towards the south-facing garden rather than the road. A broad paved terrace adjoins the rear elevation, providing space for outdoor seating and dining, with steps and pathways leading into the garden beyond. The grounds are mature and well established, with lawned areas, specimen trees, established shrubs and boundary planting creating a private and leafy setting. The garden is generous in scale and offers considerable potential. While already attractive and well enclosed, there is scope for a purchaser to further landscape, formalise or reimagine the outside space to suit their own requirements. The orientation, privacy and maturity of the planting provide an excellent framework for a more ambitious garden design if desired.

To the road side of the property, the house is set behind a walled frontage with gated access and a gravelled driveway. A detached double garage sits towards the rear of the plot, adjacent to the road. Although more modern in appearance than the main house, it provides valuable secure parking and storage, with further driveway parking available within the grounds. This property needs to be viewed to appreciate the unique, private and peaceful setting, while being in a central location.
