The wide bay window is fitted with plantation-style blinds, while the room retains attractive period detailing including ornate ceiling cornicing, a ceiling rose and deep skirting boards. A striking cast-iron fireplace with decorative tiled inserts forms the focal point of the room, complemented by a slate hearth. Parquet-style flooring runs throughout, while a fitted media unit provides useful storage and space for a television. An internal glazed screen allows additional light to pass between the living room and adjoining hallway.

Dining Room

An impressive and characterful dining room with deep green walls, parquet-style flooring and ornate ceiling detailing. Bespoke fitted bookshelves extend across much of the room, providing extensive storage and display space while giving the room a distinctive library-style feel. A decorative cast-iron fireplace with slate hearth provides an attractive focal point. There is ample space for a large dining table and chairs, making this an excellent setting for both everyday meals and larger gatherings. A circular wall mirror enhances the sense of light and space, while an over-sized double doorway leads through to the rear extension.

Kitchen/Family Room

The centrepiece of the house is the substantial rear extension, forming an exceptional open-plan kitchen, dining and family living space. The room has been designed to maximise natural light, with multiple rooflights and full-width bi-folding doors opening directly onto the rear garden. The kitchen is fitted with a striking combination of dark contemporary cabinetry and bespoke full-height timber units. A substantial central island is finished with marble work surfaces and waterfall ends, incorporating an inset sink and providing generous preparation space together with breakfast-bar seating. The main kitchen run incorporates additional marble work surfaces, a tiled splashback, integrated cooking appliances and extensive storage. Full-height cupboards provide further practical storage, while the open timber shelving and cabinetry introduce warmth and individuality to the design. The family living area is arranged around a contemporary wood-burning stove set upon a raised marble hearth. An exposed brick feature wall, built-in timber benching and fitted storage add character, while the bi-fold doors create a seamless connection with the garden. The proportions comfortably accommodate informal seating and additional dining furniture.

Cloakroom

A stylish ground-floor cloakroom positioned just off the open-plan kitchen and living space. The room is finished with dark metro-style slate tiles and matching tiled flooring, with a wall-mounted wash hand basin, concealed-cistern WC and contemporary fittings. The room is fully carpeted and enjoys far-reaching views across the surrounding rooftops.

Garden

The rear garden has been landscaped for low-maintenance enjoyment and is accessed directly through the bi-folding doors from the family room.
