St Augustine Road

A beautifully presented three-bedroom semi-detached home in Heath, where period character and thoughtful finishing come together with a generous garden and useful additional space to the rear.

The entrance hall sets the tone with original tiled flooring, decorative glazing and a solid timber staircase. To the front, the living room is framed by a bay window and herringbone parquet floor, with coving and a handsome fireplace giving the room a strong sense of character. A second reception room continues the same warm palette, with parquet flooring, ceiling rose and another decorative fireplace, while the rear dining room opens directly onto the garden through glazed doors beneath rooflights, creating a particularly inviting space for everyday family life and entertaining.

The kitchen is fitted with granite work surfaces, a double stainless-steel sink, gas hob, integrated double oven and dishwasher, with tiled flooring and space for a large fridge freezer. Upstairs are three double bedrooms, all with timber flooring and coved ceilings, including a generous principal bedroom with bay window, wall panelling and a curved radiator beneath. The bathroom is fully tiled and arranged with a bath and separate walk-in shower.

Outside, the house is approached through a low rendered wall and ironwork frontage, with a driveway continuing along the side. The large rear garden offers a paved terrace and established boundaries, while the garage provides useful ancillary space with power, lighting, rooflights, glazing and water.
