Newport Road

Set back along Newport Road within the well regarded village of Castleton, this detached and extended cottage offers a rare blend of character, privacy and potential. Stone walls, exposed beams and multiple reception spaces create a home of warmth and substance, with a layout that lends itself to both family life and quiet retreat. The gardens wrap gently around the house, revealing pockets of seating and greenery that feel both established and secluded.

Castleton is known for its strong sense of community and its convenient position between Cardiff and Newport. Nearby, the village offers a local pub, countryside walks and access to open green spaces, while more extensive amenities can be found in nearby Rumney and St Mellons. Well regarded schools serve the area, and excellent road links including the A48 and M4 provide straightforward access for commuting across South Wales and beyond.

This is a home that invites careful updating and personalisation, offering the opportunity to shape a distinctive property in a sought after location, with no onward chain.
