IF YOU LIVED HERE...

Inside, the layout is simple and well considered, with the living spaces on the ground floor and all three bedrooms upstairs. To the front, the kitchen is neatly arranged with pale cabinetry, integrated appliances and a clean, unfussy finish. Just beyond, the reception room stretches across the width of the house, giving you a generous main living space with plenty of room to settle into. Soft neutral tones keep things calm, while the fireplace creates a natural focal point.

Glazed doors at the back bring in a lovely amount of daylight and open straight onto the garden, so the reception room has an easy connection with the outside. The garden itself is mainly laid to lawn with established borders, making it a pleasant spot for a morning coffee, a bit of pottering, or relaxed meals in warmer weather. There's also the added convenience of a ground floor WC and useful storage, which makes the layout especially easy for day-to-day life.

Upstairs, you have three bedrooms and the family bathroom. The principal bedroom is a comfortable double, the second is another good-sized room, and the third would work well as a guest room or study, depending on how you live. Throughout, the house feels carefully kept and easy to make your own, with a straightforward layout that suits modern family life particularly well.

WHAT ELSE?

Highams Park Station is very close by, with London Overground services and direct connections to Liverpool Street.

Highams Park and its lake are nearby, with open green space that links into Epping Forest and gives the area its lovely sense of greenery.

The Stag & Lantern, around two minutes from the station, is a friendly local micropub with a strong community feel.
