Coleorton is a picturesque village located near Coalville in Leicestershire, England. Situated approximately 2 miles south of Coalville, this historic village offers a tranquil and rural setting amidst the natural beauty of the National Forest. Coleorton has a rich history, with evidence of settlements dating back to Roman times.

One of the village's notable landmarks is Coleorton Hall, an 18th-century country house set in beautiful parkland. This historic mansion has connections to the famous poet Lord Byron and holds a significant place in the local heritage. Coleorton itself is a small, close-knit community that values its rural charm and community spirit. While offering a peaceful lifestyle, residents also have easy access to the amenities and services available in the nearby town of Coalville.

Also nearby is the town of Ashby de la Zouch, a historic market town in Leicestershire, England, known for its rich heritage and picturesque surroundings. Ashby Castle is one of the town's most renowned features. This historic site is a testament to the town's medieval past and provides a glimpse into its historical significance. Visitors can explore the castle ruins and its beautiful gardens.

Ashby de la Zouch retains its traditional market town atmosphere with a charming market square, historic buildings, and a range of independent shops and restaurants. The town provides modern amenities and services, including schools, healthcare facilities, and leisure options, while preserving its historic character.
