Radcliffe-on-Trent is a picturesque village in Nottinghamshire, England, located about 6 miles east of Nottingham city centre. With a population of around 8,000, it's known for its riverside setting atop red cliffs by the River Trent, from which it gets its name. The village offers excellent transport links via train, bus, and the A52 road, making it popular with commuters.

Radcliffe has a rich history, with roots dating back to the Domesday Book, and features landmarks such as St Mary's Church and the historic Rectory Junction Viaduct. It boasts a strong community spirit, with numerous clubs, parks, pubs, and local events. The village is also twinned with Bussy-Saint-Georges in France and continues to be a desirable location for families and retirees alike due to its charm, amenities, and green spaces.
